

I do not want anyone, even those with whom I do business with, to call me at home. If they want to inform me of a new product or service, they can do so by mail. I do not want my private time with my family and friends to be interrupted by "representatives" of those companies to try to pressure me or my family into their marketing schemes, especially via the telephone.